

Special Issue on “Obstetric Anesthesiology”

Aims and Scope

SOJ Anesthesiology & Pain Management is a peer reviewed open access journal, exclusively designed for the international Scientific community that addresses ongoing research on Anesthesia & Pain management, which aims to provide a unique platform for publishing high quality research work. The journal aims to frame up an outstanding special issue on Obstetric Anesthesiology.

Obstetric Anesthesia is dedicated to the premise that every woman has the right to a safe and easy delivery. It is used to provide anesthesia for childbirth, which includes local and regional anesthesia for episiotomy repair; and for the safe delivery. Anesthesia for cesarean section may be achieved with an epidural or spinal block or by general anesthesia.

The objective of the special issue is to integrate the growing international community of researchers working on the topics like Anesthesia and Analgesia, Neuraxial Analgesia, Labor Analgesia Techniques, Surgical Anesthesia in Obstetric Patients and Respiratory Depression after Neuraxial Opioids.
