

Journal of Clinical Trials in Cardiology

Special Issue on “Atrial Fibrillation”

Aims and Scope

Journal of Clinical Trials in Cardiology is a peer reviewed open access journal, exclusively designed for the international Scientific community that addresses ongoing research on Clinical Trials in Cardiology, which aims to provide a unique platform for publishing high quality research work. The journal aims to frame up an outstanding special issue on Atrial Fibrillation.

Atrial fibrillation is an irregular and often rapid heart rate that commonly causes deprived blood flow to the body. During atria fibrillation, the heart's two upper chambers beat chaotically and irregularly out of coordination with the two lower chambers. Atrial fibrillation symptoms consist of heart pulsation, dyspneic and weakness. Hemodynamic stress, acute ischemia stroke, atrial swelling, metabolic stress, and neurohumoral cascade activation are all purported to promote atrial fibrillation.

The objective of the special issue is to integrate the growing international community of researchers working on the topics like Arrhythmia, Tachycardia, Acute Ischemic Stroke, Cardio Embolic Stroke and Chest Discomfort.
