

Special Issue on “Orthopedic Surgeries”

Aims and Scope

Journal of Exercise, Sports & Orthopedics is a peer reviewed open access journal, exclusively designed for the international Scientific community that addresses ongoing research on Exercise, Sports & Orthopedics, which aims to provide a unique platform for publishing high quality research work. The journal aims to frame up an outstanding special issue on Orthopedic Surgeries.

Orthopedic Surgery is a method of correction of deformities in the musculoskeletal system by incision or manipulation. Much of the work of the surgeon involves adding foreign material to the body in the form of screws, wires, pins, tongs, and prosthetics to hold damaged bones in their proper alignment or to replace damaged bone or connective tissue. Great improvements have been made in the development of artificial limbs and joints and in the materials available to repair damage to bones and connective tissue.

JESO, as its part to showcase the importance of the various orthopedic surgeries as well as the recent advancements in it to the present world, programs to release a special issue on "Orthopedic Surgeries" for which manuscripts are invited from all over the world.
