Special Issue on “Profiling Foods and Diets”

Aims and Scope

Journal of Nutritional Health & Food Science is a peer reviewed open access journal, exclusively designed for the international Scientific community that addresses ongoing research on Nutritional Health & Food Science, which aims to provide a unique platform for publishing high quality research work. The journal aims to frame up an outstanding special issue on Profiling Foods and Diets.

Global trade development and the rising demand for 'high value' commodities have lead to an increase in food scam. As the food supply chains are becoming further complex, tracing the sources of adulteration and contamination creates a significant challenge for the food industry. Waters provides effective solutions for the determination of food adulteration, authenticity, and origin. Nutrient profiling is the science of ranking foods according to their nutritional composition for reasons related to preventing disease and promoting health.

The objective of the special issue is to integrate the growing international community of researchers working on the topics like Health Assessment Tools, Calories Counter, Weight Loss Program, BMI Calculator and Portion Distortion.
