Special Issue on “Animal Health and Production”

Aims and Scope

SOJ Veterinary Sciences is a peer reviewed journal, solely designed for the worldwide scientific community that addresses current research on Veterinary Science, which aims to provide an exclusive platform for publishing worthy research work. The journal aims to frame up an outstanding special issue on Animal Health and Production.

Animal health is particularly applied to herds and flocks of animals, needs to be recently defined in the light of the rising societal concerns with modern husbandry systems and animal welfare. Animal production is the technology useful to the maintenance of animals for profit. It includes feeding, breeding, housing and marketing. Of great significance is the making of the financial arrangements crucial to the successful carrying out of each enterprise in the light of the market conditions for the trade of the end products.

SOJ Veterinary Sciences invites papers from entire the worldwide community of scientists covering many topics like but not limited to milk production, annual egg production, weighted for age, race times for distances, clean wool yield, litter size, annual pigs weaned per sow, etc. which paves a way for publishing outcomes of recent research and investigations in Veterinary Sciences.

As we are in a step ahead to bring the current research on Animal Health and Production exploration to you and every other in an easy accessible way by your participation and cooperation.
